

SO MUCH TO SEE...

SUFFOLK MUSEUMS

...SO MUCH TO DO

DID YOU KNOW?...

Clare Ancient House is the smallest museum in Suffolk.

The Long Shop Museum is home to the world's first assembly line production method, used in factories the world over today.

West Stow is the only Anglo-Saxon village to be reconstructed on its original site.

Lowestoft Museum was opened by the Queen in 1985.

Woodbridge Tide Mill is home to one of the UK's last two working tide mills.

Ipswich Museum opened in 1846 and is Suffolk's oldest museum.

You can discover fascinating collections from Roman Britain to the Renaissance along with collections of local, natural, military and maritime history, all within Suffolk museums!

...SUFFOLK HAS OVER 60 MUSEUMS!

GROUP VISITS

Many Suffolk museums are happy to arrange group visits with prior notice. Please visit individual museum websites for further details or give the museum a call before you visit.

ACCESSIBILITY

Suffolk museums are committed to improving their access and ensuring equal experiences for all. Accessibility at different museums can vary and we recommend that you visit the museum's website or phone ahead for information on specific access requirements.

GET INVOLVED!

Volunteering in your local museum can be mutually rewarding, providing a chance to share interests and skills, work with the public, enjoy companionship or gain work experience. If you are interested in becoming a volunteer, please contact the museum directly.

GET SOCIAL!

Many Suffolk museums are on Facebook and Twitter! Follow or Like them to find out about events, exhibitions, updates and more.

BE INSPIRED...

Suffolk's diverse museums contain significant collections which reflects the county's unique geography, history and culture.

Visitors can explore everything from trams and trolley buses to aircrafts and great art. There's steam engines and Suffolk Punches, farms and fishing trawlers, medals, mammoths, tractors, toys and more. With something to suit all ages and interests from handling collections, historic trails, special exhibitions and in-depth learning to family-friendly events and fun clubs, there's lots for everyone to see and do in Suffolk museums.

Opening times and admission charges can vary, so please check individual museum websites for information, including details of special events and activities, before you visit.
